

Our goal for an Interfaith Recovery Group working in an Emergency Response Program would be to assure: Vulnerable persons and communities, in the aftermath of natural and human disaster, will achieve long-term physical, psychological and spiritual recovery and acquire sustainable forms of preparedness.

To do this, the Interfaith Recovery Group invites its member communions to join together through its activities and the work in disaster preparedness, mitigation, and response. It encourages all religious organizations to cooperate, compliment and coordinate when disaster strikes so those in need receive assistance most efficiently and affectively without duplication of resources, services and energy.
